How many planetary placements are there in astrology?

Astrology incorporates up to 18 planetary placements in your birth chart. Each zodiac sign belongs to one of four elements--fire, earth, air, or water--each influencing your traits. Fire signs are energetic, earth signs are stable, air signs are intellectual, and water signs are intuitive.

What are placements in a natal chart?

To understand placements, we need to take a closer look at the natal chart. A natal chart, also known as a birth chart, is a snapshot of the sky at the exact moment of someone's birth. It is a map of the planets and their positions in the zodiac signs and houses at that specific time.

What planetary placements are in a birth chart?

The sun signifies one of many planetary placements in a birth chart--it is not your whole birth chart. You may very well be a Scorpio sun, but your unique birth chart includes 18 other planets and points, such as the moon, Mercury, and Venus, which each contribute to your narrative.

What does the placement of a planet in a house mean?

The placement of a planet in a particular house determines the area of life where its energy is most strongly felt. For example, if you have the planet Venus in your first house, which is associated with your identity and self-expression, you may have a natural charm and attractiveness that makes you stand out.

What makes an earth sign a workaholic?

There is a sense of responsibility that runs deep within the veins of an Earth sign. They are goal-oriented and passionate about their work, which can also lead to workaholic tendencies. They know what they want and how to get it, and they won't let anything stop them. Discipline and patience come naturally to these folks.

Why is Earth included in a natal chart?

Earth is not always included in a natal chart due to its position in relation to us never changing, making it different from other planets that spin in and out of alignment.
